Overview

The Baltimore Museum of Art (BMA) seeks a fellow for the Meyerhoff-Becker Curatorial Fellowship, a two-year-long residency program, based in Baltimore, Maryland.

The selected fellow will receive a full-time residency, round-trip travel expenses, and a $42,500 USD salary with benefits. Applicants who come from groups historically underrepresented in the museum field are strongly encouraged to apply.

The Fellowship will act as a career catalyst, providing a singular experience in exhibition making for emerging professionals. The fellow will work with Dorothy Wagner Wallis Director Christopher Bedford, Asma Naeem, the Eddie C. and C. Sylvia Brown Chief Curator, as well as the contemporary curatorial department to realize the next Robert E. Meyerhoff and Rheda Becker Biennial Commission, which invites internationally renowned contemporary artists to make transformative works of art for the BMA's most accessible public spaces.

The Robert E. Meyerhoff and Rheda Becker Biennial Commission

Launched in 2018, the Meyerhoff-Becker Biennial Commission presents major works by internationally recognized artists in the BMA's most public and welcoming space. It seeks to make the leading edge of contemporary art accessible and engaging to diverse audiences, providing an entry way to art for all.

The next commissioned artist is to be announced in the Spring of 2022.
